LORD BURGHLEY'S PRECEPTS.

The following are the ten precepts which William lord Burghley, lord high treasurer of England, gave to his second son Robert Cecil, afterwards earl of Salisbury.

SON ROBERT,

The virtuous inclinations of thy matchless mother, by whose tender and godly care thy infancy was governed, together with thy education under so zealous and excellent a tutor, puts me in rather assurance than hope, that thou art not ignorant of that summum bonum, which is only able to make thee happy, as well in thy death as life; I mean the true knowledge and worship of thy creator and redeemer; without which all other things are vain and miserable. So that, thy youth being guided by so sufficient a teacher, I make no doubt but he will furnish thy life with divine and moral documents. Yet, that I may not cast off the care beseeming a parent towards his child; or that thou shouldst have cause to derive thy whole felicity and welfare rather from others than from whence thou receivedst thy breath & being; I think it fit and agreeable to the affection I bear thee, to help thee with such rules and advertisements for the squaring of thy life, as are rather gained by experience, than by much reading. To the end, that entering into this exorbitant age, thou mayst be the better prepared to shun those scandalous courses, whereunto the world and the lack of experience may easily draw thee. And because I will not confound thy memory I have reduced them into ten precepts; and, next unto Moses' tables, if thou imprint them in thy mind, thou shalt reap the benefit and I the content. And they are the following:

I. When it shall please God to bring thee to man's estate use great providence and circumspection in chusing thy wife. For from thence will spring all thy future good or evil. And it is an action of life like unto a stratagem of warre; wherein man can erre but once. If thy estate be good, match near home and at leisure; if weak far off and quickly. Inquire diligently of her disposition, and how her parents have been inclined in their youth.—Let her not be poore, how generous soever. For a man can buy nothing in the market with gentility. Nor chuse a base and uncomely creature altogether for wealth; for it will contempt in others and lothing in thee. Neither make choice of [a] dwarfe or [a] fool; for by the one thou shalt beget a race of pigmies; the other will be thy continual disgrace, and it yrke thee to hear her talk. For thou shall find it to thy great grief, that there is nothing more fulsome than a she fool. And touching the guiding of thy house, let thy hospitalitie be moderate; and, according to the meanes of thy estate, rather plentiful than sparing, but not costly. For I never knew any man grow poore by keeping an orderly table. But some consume themselves through secret vices, and their hospitalitie bears the blame. But badish swinish drunkards out of thine house, which is a vice impairing health, consuming much and makes no show. I never heard of praise ascribed to the drunkard, but [for] the well bearing [of] his drink, which is a better commendation for a brewer's horse or a drayman, than for either a gentleman or [a] serving man. Beware thou spend not above three or four parts of thy revenews; nor above a third part of that in thy house. For the other two parts will do more than defray thy extraordinaries which always surmount the ordinary by much; otherwise thou shalt live like a rich beggar, in continual want. And the needy man can never live happily or contentedly. For every disaster makes him ready to mortgage or sell. And that gentleman who sells an acre of land, sells an ounce of credit: For gentility is nothing else but ancient riches. So that, if the foundation shall at any time shake, the building must needs follow. So much for the first precept.

II. Bring thy children up in learning and obedience, yet without outward austerity Praise them openly, reprehend them secretly. Give them good countenance and convenient maintenance according to thy ability, otherwise thy life will seem their bondage, and what portion thou shalt leave them at thy death they will thank death for it and not thee. And I am persuaded that the foolish cockering of some parents, and the over stern carriage of others, causeth more men and women to take ill courses, than their own vicious inclinations. Marry thy daughters in time least they marry themselves; and suffer not thy sonne to pass the ALPES. For they shall learn nothing there but pride, blasphemy and atheism.—And if by travell they get a few broken languages, that shall profit them nothing more than to have one meat served in divers dishes. Neither, by my consent, shalt thou train them up in warrs. For he that sets up his rest to live by that profession can hardly be an honest man or a good Christian. Besides, it is a science no longer in request than use. For soldiers in peace are like chimneys in summer.

III. Live not in the country without corn and cattle about thee. For he that putteth his hand to the purse for every expence of houshold, is like him that keepeth water in a sieve. And, what provision thou shalt want, learn to buy it at the best hand. For there is one penny saved in four betwixt buying in thy need, and when the markets and seasons serve fittest for it. Be not served with kinsmen or friends, or men entreated to stay, for they expect much and do little; nor with such as are amorous, for their heads are intoxicated. And keep rather too few than one too many. Feed them well, and pay them with the most; and then thou may'st boldly require service at their hands.

IV. Let thy kindred and allies be welcome to thy house and table. Grace them with thy countenance and farther them in all honest actions. For by this means thou shall so double the band of nature, as thou shalt find them so many advocates to plead an apology for thee behind thy back. But shake off those glow worms, I mean parasites and sycophants, who will feed and fawn upon thee in the summer of prosperity, but, in an adverse storme, they will shelter thee no more than an arbour in winter.

V. Beware of securetyship for thy best friends. He that praveth another man's debts, seeketh his own decay. But, if thou canst not otherwise chuse, rather lend thy money thyself upon good bonds, although thou borrow it. So shalt thou secure thyself and pleasure thy friend. Neither borrow money of a neighbor or a friend, but of a stranger, where, paying for it, thou shalt hear no more of it. Otherwise thou shalt eclipse thy credit, loose thy freedom, and yet pay dear as to another. But in borrowing of money be precious of thy word. For he that hath care of keeping dayes of payment is lord of another man's purse.

VI. Undertake no suit against a poor man without receiving much wrong. For besides [that] thou makest him thy compeer, it is a base conquest to triumph where there is small resistance. Neither attempt law against any man before thou be fully resolved that thou hast right on thy side: and then spare not for either money or paines. For a cause or two so followed and obtained will free thee from suits a great part of my life.

VI. Be sure to keep some great man thy friend, but trouble him not for trifles.—Compliment him often with many, yet small gifts, and of little charge. And if thou hast cause to bestow any gratuity, let it be something which may be daily in sight. Otherwise, in in this ambitious age, thou shalt remain like a hop without pole, live in obscurity and be made a foot ball for every insulting companion to spurn at.

VIII Towards thy superiors be humble yet generous; with thine equals familiar respective. Towards thine inferiors shew much humanity, and some familiarity, as to bow the body, stretch forth the hand, and uncover the head, with such like popular compliments. The first prepares thy way to advancement. The second makes thee knowne for a man well bred. The third gains a good report, which once got is easily kept. For right humanitie takes such deep root in the minds of the multitude as they are easilier gained by unprofitable courtesies, than by churlish benefits. Yet I advise thee not to affect or neglect popularitie too much. Seeke not to be Essex; shunne to be Rawleigh.

IX. Trust not any man with thy life, credit or estate. For it is meer folly for a man to enthrall himself to his friend, as though, occasion being offered, he should not dare to become the enemie.

X. Be not scurilous in conversation, nor satyrricall in thy jests. The one will make thee unwelcome to all company; the other pull on quarrels, and get thee hated of thy best friends. For suspicious jests (when any of them savor of truth) leave a bitterness in the mindes of those which are touched. And, albeit I have already pointed at this inclusively; yet I think it necessary to leave it to thee as a speciall caution. Because I have seen many so prone to quip and gird, as they would rather lose their friend than their jest. And if perchanse their boiling braine yeild a quaint scoffe, they will travell to be delivered of it, as a woman with child. These nimble fancies are but the froth of wit.

From the Baltimore Federal Republican.

Paper money again.—It was given out some time ago, that Mr. Gallatin was about to produce another financial statement, which would be at variance with his annual report. That statement has at length appeared. Far from retracting any of his former facts or observations, he confirms them with new explanations. His expedients are to reloan five millions and an half of six per cent stock; to borrow from banks and individuals; and to issue PAPER money under the name of Treasury Notes, negotiable, bearing interest, and payable in one year. The moral world seems to have turned completely round, and to have rendered democracy giddy in the revolution. Whether it will fall with giddiness, remains to be proved. What do we see? A profuse foliage of leaves, taxes and paper money is ready to sprout out of a crab bud and sapless trunk, constituting a phenomenon, to be noted and admired as another proof that wonders have not ceased in modern times. The revenue that is gone is to be recovered by heavily encreasing the duties upon commerce, and totally withdrawing or shortening the period of credit. Like a Leghorn trader, government is to raise all it can from all kinds of banks, and to push its paper upon every one that have dealings with it. Through the crooked roads of Embargo and Non-intercourse, we find ourselves brought to the "old emission" of paper money. Let us also remember, that to countenance and support this encouragement to a general bank system, Banks are encreasing so fast, that the paper mills will be compelled to work double tides in order to support them. Though instead of renewing the charter of the Bank of the United States, it is proposed by the administration to found a new one with a capital vastly enlarged.

Mr. Gallatin has said enough to prove that the sale of public lands does not constitute the succedaneum for a twenty years war, which has been represented so prolific that arithmetic has scarcely the power of enumerating the amount of its produce. On the contrary, he gives us to understand, that the sale of lands is a source of revenue which, however abundant, flows but slowly, and that to encrease the current it would be necessary so to alter the laws, that settlers may be compelled into the toils of speculators, instead of purchasing upon credit the little farms they want, immediately from government, as cheaply as he can who buys land by the township.

It appears that the treasury is in so exhausted a state that no increase of taxes will relieve it from want, because they cannot come to its aid in time. Loans and an emission of paper money must be resorted to immediately, or it will stop payment.—All the wise and seasonable admonitions given by this financier have been disregarded, till his best expedients have become impracticable and useless. This is the necessary consequence of the "no plan" manner of acting, which in staring characters of folly is branded upon the front of democracy. In the annihilation of trade, the feebleness of government, the collisions of different states, and the approaching substitution of paper money for the avails of a solid and rich revenue, the present period strikingly resembles that which preceded the formation of the federal constitution.—Hence it is clearly proved, that the sudden and universal prosperity which followed its adoption, was the result of federal management as well as of the salutary principles of that instrument. For men have been selected to carry it into effect, so incompetent and so perniciously inclined, that what had formerly an instantaneously curative operation upon the national calamities, has not been sufficient in their hands to save us from a relapse into equally great evils of the same fatal nature. They who planned the constiution, and so faithfully and successfully applied it to the objects it contemplated, are capable of renewing the blessings, which it may be made to produce; and it remains for the people to say when and whether they shall be again called to serve them. But the change must be made before it is too late. We are so near to the lee shore, that unless the ship is soon put about, we may be overwhelmed and dashed to pieces.

Alexandria Daily Gazette.

MONDAY, APRIL 2.

Our readers are requested to correct a material error in the first part of Mr. Porter's speech published in this Gazette on Friday last—In the first line of the 4th paragraph, 3d column, it reads "I am much opposed &c." It should have been "I am not opposed &c."

The ship William and John, Dangerfield, of and for this port, was left at Isle of May 23d of February—time of sailing uncertain.

Highly Important.—When the Spanish minister presented his credentials to the government of the United States, and was rejected with a full knowledge that he was authorised to offer EIGHT MILLIONS of DOLLARS as compensation for spoliations committed by Spanish ships under French influence on American commerce, and also to settle the definitive boundaries of Louisiana, the disputes respecting which had once before nearly involved us, in a war with Spain, the people were astonished that such proposals should be spurned in a contemptuous manner. Eight millions of dollars in our "exhausted treasury" would have been a pretty thing. But our wise rulers thought otherwise. What will the people now say, when they find that the Spanish government of Mexico which adjoins Louisiana would not only have cordially joined to fulfil this amicable arrangement in the fullest extent, but that now, considering this rejection as a hostile act, they are putting their frontiers in a state of defence. Should we have a Spanish war on the heels of our other national calamities, great will be the responsibility of those who have invited it. In such a case what would become of Louisiana, for which we have paid fifteen millions? These things are of too serious a nature to be trifled with. [Freeman's Journal.]

Extract of a letter from a gentleman high in office in Mexico, to his friend in this city, dated 28th Dec. 1809, received by the way of the Havanna.

"The moment his excellency the viceroy received the despatch from Luis de Onis announcing that the government of the U. States had refused to acknowledge him as envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of our Catholic monarch Ferdinand the 7th, he adopted every measure which prudence dictated on the occasion, ordering at the same time the greatest vigilance on our frontiers and all along our extensive coast. This unexpected event caused much indignation among the loyal Mexicans, who hitherto had flattered themselves that the United States would sympathise with the Spaniard in their present calamity, and reciprocate that friendship and assistance they so liberally afforded the Americans during their struggle for liberty and independence; but in this hope they now find themselves disappointed, and the effects thereby produced in the public mind, is by no means favorable towards the U. States.

"On the receipt of Don Luis de Onis's letter the viceroy convened the council, together with the three fiscals (or attorney generals) and laid before them said despatch, requesting their opinion on the subject of its contents, which they delivered unanimously in the following words, on the 23d inst.

"The members assembled in the extraordinary council convened this day, having taken into consideration the copy of the letter addressed to your excellency by Don Luis de Onis, which your excellency has laid before them, are of unanimous opinion and beg leave to inform your excellency, that in the first place he ought to recognize Don Luis de Onis, as minister plenipotentiary and envoy extraordinary, of our lord and king Don Ferdinand the seventh,* and in his name of the Supreme Central Junta, near the United States of America. 2dly: That the United States, contrary to every expectation and wish, admit a plenipotentiary or envoy from the intruder Joseph Napoleon, as king of Spain, this conduct may be truly considered hostile, and in that case your excellency ought to adopt, with respect to these dominions, a corresponding conduct in regard to the United States.—3dly: In order that your excellency may regulate your conduct on this delicate subject, we presume to observe that it is necessary to request Don Luis de Onis to be pleased to communicate to your excellency all such information as he may have or shall hereafter receive from the Supreme Central Junta, together with such other information he may acquire respecting the United States, their armaments, and other measures they may now or hereafter adopt in regard to Spain. Your excellency may accordingly communicate this resolution to Don Luis de Onis, that he may make the necessary use thereof whenever he thinks proper: and also to the commandant of the frontier provinces, that he may be guided thereby, in the several districts under his command."

"The viceroy has also given orders to the treasury to accept and pay all bills drawn by Don Luis de Onis for objects connected with his mission."

* Fernando Septimo," king of Spain, held captive by Bonaparte, in France, and nearly the whole of the Spanish provinces conquered by the French.

The French privateer schr. Le Revenge de Cerf, captain Bonne, of St. Martins, put into this port yesterday, from a cruise, in order to get a respite from her "useful labors," in "burning, sinking and destroying." We understand that she has made several captures, and that she has now on board a valuable quantity of dry goods, plundered from captured vessels. Whether these vessels were all, or any part of them Americans, will probably never be known, as the ocean, on the new French principle, like the grave, hides all its secrets from the public eye. It is asserted, however, that all the vessels captured were Spaniards. Le Revenge de Cerf, is a small pilot boat built vessel, mounts but two or three small guns, and has about 40 men.

PHILADELPHIA, March 30.

Yesterday arrived schr. Satellite, Seabury, 19 days from St. Barts, who informs that two or three days before he sailed, the French privateer schr. Superior put into that island from a cruize, and it was said she had on board upwards of 80'000 dolls in specie, and to the same amount in dry goods which she had taken from vessels she had captured. She sent in two days before her, a Spanish schr. which she had taken loaded with dry goods to a large amount.

The Superior was sold immediately after her arrival and hoisted the Swedish flag. Capt. Seabury left there the brig St. Croix, Ansdale, ready to take in for this port, and above a hundred vessels belonging to the U. S. Flour from 11 to 12 dollars in demand.

The science of mathematics is of all others the most satisfactory. It rests upon demonstration and necessary results. The science of physics is less satisfactory than the other; because it refers to contingencies. Yet, as these contingencies are regulated by general laws, it is capable of certainty in an equal degree with the former; provided the phenomena be accurately observed and the inductions truly made.—But, the science of politics, being hitherto arbitrary, depends not only on contingency, but on casualty. Hence the conflicts which politics generate even with the honest—hence the forbearance, which it becomes the votaries of politics mutually to indulge.

A casualty so trivial as the fall of a leaf, led Newton to discover the laws of gravitation and of our system. Were politicians and statesmen to attend to casualties as they might, they would not want lessons of prudence, if not of wisdom. This tho't is suggested by the effect of "Macon's bill" as it is called. After it was proposed and while under discussion, the tobacco of Virginia advanced from 50 to 100 per cent When the report of its rejection arrived, no sale could be made at any price! What increases the resources of a nation enables it to enjoy peace, or to encounter war.—What produces this effect must be right.—Verbum sat sapienti.

Captain Burger, of the ship John and Edward, left Lisbon on the 5th of February, and informs us that the French army were advancing fast on the borders of Portugal, having reached as far as Barenta. Bonaparte was at the head of an army of 100,000 men, who were marching though Spain for Portugal. Captain B. was informed by the British general Fane, that he believed the French would be in possession of Lisbon in April. The British army had received a reinforcement of 5,000 men, and expected to have as many more in March. A squadron of gun boats had gone up the Tagus to prevent the French from crossing. A number of the inhabitants of Lisbon had emigrated to the Brazils.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

[Taken for the Alexandria Gazette.]

SATURDAY, March 30

On motion of Mr. Macon the house came to the following resolution: Resolved, That the secretary of the treasury be directed to lay before this house a statement of the gross annual amount of the expences of the military and naval establishments of the U States from the 4th of March, 1789, to the end of the year 1809.

Mr. Bassett, from the committee to whom was referred the resolution relative to the sale of the public armed vessels and gunboats, Reported, that if the President think it be consistent with sound economy, he be authorised to sell gun-boats Nos. 14, 16, 17, 20, and 21, in such way as he may think proper. The report was referred to a committee of the whole.

A bill from the senate, granting a quantity of lands to the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal Company, was read twice and referred to a committee of the whole on Tuesday next.

A bill from the senate authorising a subscription on the part of the United States, to the stock of the Ohio Canal Company, was also read twice and referred to the same committee.

A bill from the senate to extend the time of making payments for public lands, in certain cases, was also read and referred to the committee on public lands.

The batture bill was then taken up, having been left unfinished last evening; several amendments were offered and rejected. The bill was finally passed to be engrossed as amended yesterday by Mr. Gholson, and ordered to a third reading this day.

MACON'S BILL, fiftieth and last time!

On motion of Mr. Macon his bill, respecting commercial intercourse, was taken up. The question to adhere before the house.

The question was taken by ayes and noes and carried. Ayes 66, noes 58. The bill is therefore put at rest, never again to appear to frighten and vex old women and "grown children."

Mr. Randolph, after a short introductory discourse offered a resolution to repeal the non intercourse law. The question to consider this resolution was taken by ayes and noes and carried: Ayes 59, noes 53.

Mr. Mumford moved to amend the resolution by adopting and that provision be made by law to maintain and defend the honor and rights of the nation against the unjust edicts of France and England.—Before any question was taken on this proposition the house adjourned.

GENUINE MEDICINES

THE LATE RICHARD LEE, JR OF N YORK,

As prepared from the original recipes in possession of the subscriber, his widow, by whom they are prepared and without whose signature none are genuine.

Obstinate Coughs, Colds, Asthmas, &c.

Are immediately relieved and speedily cured by the use of

HAMILTON'S ELIXER FOR COUGHS.

DEAR bought experience has taught thousands that oily and heated medicines, joined with strong opiates or sleepy drugs, repeated doses of which flatter and deceive the patient for the present, by procuring momentary ease; experience, I say, has taught thousands, that the common opiates and balsamics, as they are called, finally aggravate every disorder of the breast and lungs, in their most distressing symptoms: that they load the stomach and impair the digestion, inflame the whole system, increase the difficulty of breathing and excite fever. But the qualities of this valuable discovery are evinced by perfectly opposite effects. A single trial will prove, that it restores the determination of the fluids to the surface of the body, and brings on the common healthful perspiration—that it dislodges and evacuates the tough viscid phlegm or mucus, strengthens the weakened vessels of the lungs, sheathes the acrimonious humor which irritates them, and finally discharges it. Thus striking at the root of the disorder, the symptoms are of course effectually and permanently conquered, the reverse of common medicines, which weaken the constitution and give strength to the disorder for the sake of moderating for the present some of its painful effects.

To parents who have children afflicted with the whooping cough, this discovery is of the first magnitude, as it affords immediate relief, checks the progress, and in a short time entirely removes the most cruel disorder to which children are liable. The elixir is so perfectly agreeable, and the dose so small that no difficulty arises in taking it.

Selected Recommendations.

Being desirous to make public for the good of others, the excellent quality of Hamilton's elixir, prepared by the late Mr. Lee, I have sent you the following account of the benefit I have received from it; which I hope will induce others to give it a trial. In consequence of a bruise on the breast received from a fall, my health grew bad, my breathing became very difficult, and frequently I have had suddenly to rise up in my bed with all the horrors of immediate suffocation.—Add so these a constant pain in my breast, and a cough, a great loss of strength & flesh, and you may conceive that my symptoms evidently indicated an approaching consumption. The advice of a most eminent physician was resorted to, and afterwards a second was called in, but without giving me any relief. Another physician who knew me and the circumstances of my case, advised me to give Hamilton's Elixir a trial, saying he had used it in his practice and always found it to do much good. A bottle was procured from Mr. Birch's, and I found relief before I had taken half of it. I continued to use it & was soon strong to attend to business. On taking cold, some of my former symptoms return, but are always removed by a dose or two of the Elixir.

George Bonner, jun.
no. 11. Budd street, Philadelphia.
Mrs. H. Lee, New York.

Mr. Abijah Henly, Bridge street, Baltimore, was cured by one bottle of Hamilton's Elixir, of a very complicated disorder, occasioned by a very severe cold caught several months ago. He breathed with the greatest difficulty, and was often thrown into weakening sweats when he attempted to walk any distance, and his voice would frequently fail in such a degree that he could only attempt to whisper. He has been upwards of six weeks without a return of his complaints; and desires to give his public testimony in favor of this invaluable medicine.

Itch Cured,

By once using Lee's Sovereign Ointment. The proprietor informs those persons and families who are suffering under this disease, against the infection of which no person is safe, that if this ointment is used at night on going to bed it never fails to perform a cure by the following morning, as thousands who have used it during the last ten years can testify. The peculiar excellencies of this infallible remedy for the itch, above every other, are the certainty of the cure by a single application; the ingredients being so innocent as to be applied with perfect safety to the tenderest infant; and its being not only free from any offensive smell, but equally agreeable with the pleasantest pomatum.

Dr. Hamilton's Grand Restorative.

Which the inventor confidently recommends as an invaluable medecine for the speedy relief, and permanent cure of various complaints which result from dissipated pleasures, juvenile indiscretions, residence in climates not congenial to the constitution, immoderate use of tea, frequent intoxication, or any destructive intemperance, the unskillfull or frequent use of mercury, the diseases peculiar to females at a certain period of life, bad layings in, &c.

HAMILTON'S
CELEBRATED WORM DESTROYING LOZENGES.

Among the symptoms attending Worms are, disagreeable breath, especially in the morning—bad and corrupt gums—itching in the nose, and about the seat—convulsions, eppiletic fits, and sometimes a privation of speech—irregular appetite, sometimes loathing food and sometimes voracious—purging with slimy and fœtid stools—vomiting—large and hard belly—pains and sickness at the stomach—pains in the head and thighs, with lowness of spirits—slow fever, with small and irregular pulse—a dry cough—excessive thirst—sometimes pale and unhealthy countenance, and sometimes the face bloated and flushed.

Persons afflicted with any of the above symptoms, shoul have immediate recourse to Hamilton's Worm Destroying Lozenges which have been constantly attended with success in all complaints similar to those above described.
